Schools Need Your Help

JBIT is an online primary resource designed for K-12. The archive contains thousands of historical newspaper articles, maps, documents, illustrations and rare books. Also available are stimulating video time capsules that bring the archives to life! The archives can be accessed from any computer anywhere giving the teacher, student and parents great flexibility. Unlike other online archives that display only text versions, JBIT articles and rare books are reproduced in PDF image preserving all but the smell and the ink stains, offering students an opportunity to experience the past, not just read about it.

School budgets are tighter than ever. It's time for businesses, organizations and individuals to take direct action supporting education. For only $195 (with discount code UPVXN) per school your organization logo will display to school staff, students and family in the school/schools you decide to sponsor. What a great way to support your local community and schools across the nation. Teacher requests come in every day. Susan, a School Librarian writes:

"Our school is an inner-city school with 73% of our students reading below a Level 3. I am trying to provide our students with as much variety as possible to encourage them to keep on reading. I believe JBIT is a product that will be interest to a large number of our students. Thank you for consideration."

You Can View Usage Stats

When you become a sponsor you will have your own login area that allows you to access the archives and view stats of how often teachers and students are using JBIT. What a wonderful way to see first hand how this resource is being used and how your contribution is being utilized effectively!

Sponsor Today!

Sponsorship will be good through August 2010. Sponsor today so that teachers can start building their lesson plans for the new school year beginning this fall!

There is nothing like actually reading news as it happened. It gives students an entirely different feel opposed to reading about it in history books. A resource such as JBIT can make all the difference to a student understanding the importance of past events and can give them a better appreciation for America's history.

Just as the pioneer, shopkeeper, factory worker, farmer and teacher sat down in the evening to know the world through their newspaper, students can experience the glories and heartaches, the traumas and dramas of American life from the same pages our ancestors held in their hands.

Each time a teacher, student or parent signs in to use the archives they will see that you made this resource available to them. (see screenshot below) You may also sponsor schools anonymously or in the honor of a loved one the choice is entirely up to you.

Don't hesitate on this exciting opportunity to sponsor a school or several schools in your hometown or local area today. Branding your company with a resource that helps your local community is good Public Relations. Teachers are excited and waiting for your support.
